Objectives: CAPSELLA is a CAPS project (Collective Awareness Projects for Sustainability and Social Innovation). It raises awareness on sustainability challenges related to conventional, industrialised food production and agricultural systems. We do this especially within and among local communities (smallholders' agriculture, biodiversity, food quality) but also within the broader European public, and by offering innovative ICT solutions. Our major aim is that these solutions address needs and requirements coming from the communities. To achieve this, we use a combination of participatory bottom up data collection and top down data integration to develop solutions for two domains: agrobiodiversity and local food knowledge.
